Cancellation Policy

Service fees is still due upon order being placed whether signing does or does not occur for any reason. Service fees are still due payable regardless of any notary error. Only the state law notarization fee is subject to a refund if notary made an error on notarial act. Likewise, once a phone order has been placed, your payment is non-refundable if you choose to cancel for any reason at all or if notary is in route to destination.

I work according to state notarial code. You understand that I am not an attorney and therefore not licensed to practice law and cannot give legal advice. For legal inquiries, please contact an attorney or your local bar association. You agree that only a state law notarization fee is subject to a refund if signing does not occur for any reason, including cancellation, and is issued only by specific written request. You agree to indemnify and hold us and the signing notary public harmless. You agree to make sure you have all documentation filled out, all required expired, valid identification available, and that you make yourself available to communicate throughout the process.

I am not allowed to choose a particular document a client may need for a transaction.

to choose the type of notarization or certificate wording for a given document. The client must decide.

to prepare a document or give advice on how to fill out, draft or complete a document.

to provide legal advice or answer questions about a legal matter.

If you have any questions ask the agency of where document originated from or seek an attorney if you have questions, so you can receive proper instructions or advice.
